Julie Snow, FAIA — founding principal of Snow Kreilich Architects, Inc., a studio based architectural practice — has garnered national recognition as both a practitioner and an academic.

Snow has taught architecture at the Graduate School of Design at Harvard, the University of Southern California, and the University of Minnesota College of Design. She has lectured at the Walker Art Center, the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art and the National Building Museum. Snow has also been the keynote speaker at several American Institute of Architects (AIA) national conferences.

During her career, Snow has received numerous awards and honors, including: AIA Honor Awards, the Holcim North American Bronze Award, Progressive Architecture Design Award, the Chicago Athenaeum’s American, Architect Magazine Annual Design Review, and US General Services Administrations Design Excellence Awards.

A true leader in her profession, Snow has been described as “a ballerina who can dance in work boots.”
